

While chatting with MTV actor Michael Fassbender talked a little bit about his experience on X-Men: First Class. Fassbender says that making the movie was a very trying time and that they worked really hard on it. Also saying it was a rewarding experience and he hopes they get the same crew back for a sequel. In closing Fassbender also said he and McAvoy have been collaborating on ideas for a sequel. Get More: Movie Trailers, Movies Blog "We worked very hard. It was a very trying time. We were lacking two months pre-production essentially, so everyone had to just roll up their sleeves. Thank god, James is a good guy a very smart guy and he's a very practical guy. I have been a big fan of Matthew(Vaughn), he's great because he makes films as a fan, There's something like a nine-year-old boy in him when he's making a film. He's very

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JakeLester/news/?a=47744&t=Michael_Fassbender_Talks_iX-Men_First_Class_Says_He_Has_Ideas_For_The_Sequel