

As we all know a 3D version of the movie hits theaters today. I won't be handing over any more of my cash to Mr Lucas to see a movie I already saw when I was a teenager in the cinema, and didn't like even then. You are welcome to, I'm not trying to sway anyone one way or the other. I'm sure if you have already made up your mind to go, this isn't exactly going to change it. I'm sure many of you know I'm not a fan, but I didn't want to make this some kind of complete lambasting of a movie that has possibly been ridiculed more than any other in history - while having a legion of staunch defenders at the same time. I don't think it's a good, well made film. I also Genuinely believe it is the most disappointing movie ever made. But that
