

Commencing Sunday, February 12, held at New York City's Javits Center, the 2012 Toy Fair is said to showcase the latest toys, action figures and games for all kids and adults. And with The Avengers and The Amazing Spider-Man two of this year's most-anticipated comic book movie adaptations, we can expect more toys to unveil. Well, now thanks to USA Today, Diamond Select's minimates based on The Amazing Spider-Man characters have been revealed, in addition to a resin statue depicting Spidey posing beside a skyscraper. And also, thanks to Insider Images, we have a new look at Hasbro's Quinjet and S.H.I.E.L.D. Halicarrier from The Avengers line. "The Amazing Spider-Man" is swinging into theaters this summer, and Diamond Select is adding to the Marvel Minimates collection with two-packs of movie figures including Uncle Ben, Aunt May, Spidey, Peter Parker (with skateboard!), a police officer and the evil Lizard.
