

The following report should be some sad news for fans of the highly popular turtles. A few weeks ago, a rumor suggesting that Rocksteady Games was making a new Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles video game hit the web. The rumor wasn't addressed by the studio themselves - best known for the Batman: Arkham Asylum/City video games - until now. Rocksteady Chief Sefton Hill informed Kotaku "while the rumor was amusing, they're doing no such thing." Much speculation surrounding which game the studio would tackle next. While a sequel to Arkham City is rather likely, it's possible that Rocksteady would take on another DC Comics hero (there's some interest in making a Superman video game in the near future). What do you want to see Rocksteady make next? Also, do you want to see a new Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles video game made in the near future? Share your thoughts below in

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=54462&t=VIDEO_GAMES_Rocksteady_Not_Developing_A_TEENAGE_MUTANT_NINJA_TURTLES_Game