

The geniuses behind last year's hit game Transformers: War For Cybertron, High Moon Studios, have announced a sequel to said game. It will be titled Fall of Cybertron. According to Game Informer, the game will continue the story of War For Cybertron, but is "a natural successor rather than a true sequel" since it "changes and improves upon so many of the fundamental ideas." Not many details has been released. High Moon Studios wants to establish a "darker tone" for it. Look for more details in the November issue of Game Informer. Destroyer14: This will probably bridge the gap between War for Cybertron and Prime. (The cartoon currently airing on the Hub.) It'll probably explain why Bumblebee can't talk, among other things.

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Destroyer14/news/?a=47679&t=VIDEO_GAMES_iTransformers_War_for_Cybertron_Sequel_Announced