

A historian believes he has identified the designer of the Bayeux Tapestry, an 11th-century embroidered cloth once characterized by Bryan Talbot as “the first known British comic strip.” Embroidered on linen with colored woolen yarns, the 230-foot “tapestry” consists of about 50 scenes depicting the Norman conquest of England in 1066. Although some scholars have [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2013/10/designer-of-bayeux-tapestry-first-known-british-comic-strip-identified/>