

The controversial removal of Marjane Satrapi's Persepolis last week from seventh-grade classrooms of Chicago Public Schools had at least one positive side effect: healthy sales of the 13-year-old graphic novel at local bookstores. DNAinfo reports several area booksellers sold out of the memoir over the weekend following a directive by CPS CEO Barbara Byrd-Bennett telling [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2013/03/protests-brisk-sales-follow-schools-removal-of-persepolis/>