

Despite objections by the San Diego Chargers and concerns about public access to the waterfront, the California Coastal Commission on Thursday unanimously approved the $520 million expansion of the San Diego Convention Center, viewed as critical to keeping Comic-Con International in the city. While the blessing of the commission — it's a state agency with [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2013/10/san-diego-convention-center-expansion-approved/>