

Jim Rugg is an interesting and fun guy to talk to. The Pittsburgh-based cartoonists, whose resume includes such diverse genre work as Street Angel, Adventure Time and the Plain Jane series for DC's late Minx imprint, is someone who has clearly studied comics — and certain comic artists specifically — very closely, and has a genuine [...]

Read more: <http://robot6.comicbookresources.com/2013/06/the-supermag-story-an-interview-with-jim-rugg/>