

Director Scott Derrickson and Marvel Studios President Kevin Feige previewed 15 minutes of Doctor Strange in Burbank, California last night for the press and some lucky audience members. The footage description, which comes courtesy of CBR, has now made its way online, and highlights several key scenes from the film, along with a few surprises. SPOILERS AHEAD!! In the first sequence, Strange is revealed to be uninterested in saving individual lives, as he declines to help Rachel McAdams' Christine Palmer in the ER. Though they no longer seem to be a couple, he invites her to his next speaking engagement, an invitation she declines. "They were never about us," she tells him. "They were about you." That readily apparent self-centeredness brings upon Strange a life-changing accident. After a fade to black, Strange enters the chambers of the Ancient One — and immediately dismisses her mystical view of the universe. Glimpsed in previous trailers and footage, the full sequence unveils more of the film's decidedly trippy

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/doctor\_strange/15-minute-doctor-strange-preview-footage-description-highlights-a145903