has been a very interesting year for movies. Releases which were expected to be huge hits twelve months ago have ended up disappointing (Jason Bourne, Star Trek, and Warcraft are just a few examples of that), and it's actually surprisingly easy to agree with those who dismiss this year's summer blockbuster season as the worst ever. Thankfully, there are still a few films to look forward to. Outside of Doctor Strange - which may already be in theaters by the time you read this or depending where you live - none of those now include superhero
