

X-Men: Supernova If recent reports are to be believed, that will either be the official title or is the working title for the seventh main storyline X-Men film (eleventh overall). The title has been circulating since around mid-December, but until this week was believed to be the working title for Josh Boone's X-Men: The New Mutants. However, that all changed when Production Weekly released their latest issue, for the week of January 12th, which featured not the usual one, but two separate X-Men listings: one for the aforementioned New Mutants spin-off and one for the mysterious X-Men: Supernova. Further details weren't provided and it's still up in the air even today whether or not the title is actually in reference to a new X-Men film or if it's just a mistake, but based on a recently posted second listing, it's starting to look like it might indeed be the former. The production tracking website My Entertainment World updated their site this morning with listings for the New

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/x-men/a-new-listing-may-have-uncovered-the-title-of-the-next-x-men-film-plus-a148016>