

Man of Steel and Batman v Superman: Dawn of Justice were met with a mixed response from fans and critics alike, but it's fair to say that director Zack Snyder managed to introduce us to one of the best big screen Caped Crusaders to date (aside from the fact he killed). So, with Ben Affleck no longer at the helm, should the filmmaker choose The Batman as his next project? Some fans seem to hope so! ScreenGeek has started a petition which so far has close to 5000 signatures requesting that Snyder gets to work on The Batman. You can sign it by clicking here, and they make a compelling argument for why he should be chosen by Warner Bros. Of course, it's worth noting that a shortlist of directors has been revealed and Snyder's name was nowhere to be seen, but this could make the studio take note. "Zack Snyder's commitment to source material, extraordinary visual style, and previous experience in the DCEU

Read more: <https://www.comicbookmovie.com/batman/a-petition-has-been-started-for-justice-league-director-zack-snyder-to-a148690>