

I have really been hoping to hear from Moore on Miller's recent remarks as both men are right up there among my favorite writers despite always shaving very different styles and takes on certain characters. So it's probably not surprising that they also differ vastly in their opinions on what went down at Occupy Wall Street. Honest Publishing has been running a series of in depth interviews with Moore which cover a great number of subjects. Below is the relevant excerpts on Miller and OWS.. “Well, Frank Miller is someone whose work I’ve barely looked at for the past twenty years. I thought the Sin City stuff was unreconstructed misogyny, 300 appeared to be wildly ahistoric, homophobic and just completely misguided. I think that there has probably been a rather unpleasant sensibility apparent in Frank Miller’s work for quite a long time. Since I don’t have anything to do with the comics

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrants/news/?a=50621&t=Alan_Moore_Responds_To_Frank_Millers_Anti_Occupy_Wall_Street_Remarks