

The folks at the LA Times' Hero Complex has landed an exclusive on whose the latest to join Zack Snyder's much-anticipated Superman: Man Of Steel. Portraying none other than the lovely Lois Lane, The Fighter Academy-award nominated actress Amy Adams is set. Check out what Snyder had to say. "There was a big, giant search for Lois," Snyder said. "For us it was a big thing and obviously a really important role. We did a lot of auditioning but we had this meeting with Amy Adams and after that I just felt she was perfect for it." "It goes back to what I've said about Superman and making him really understandable for today. What's important to us is making him relevant and real and making him empathetic to today's audience so that we understand the decisions he makes. That applies to Lois as well. She has to be in the same

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=33946&t=Amy_Adams_Portraying_Lois_Lane_In_iSuperman_Man_Of_Steeli