

Bleeding Cool had a chance to participate in some sort of a John Carter panel in London, where they have seen the footage, as well as what director Andrew Stanton (WALL-E, Finding Nemo) had to say about the project. One of the things many are wondering why they decided to drop "Of Mars" from the title, and now we may have the answer: "Here's the real truth of it. I'd already changed it from A Princess Of Mars to John Carter Of Mars. I don't like to get fixated on it, but I changed Princess Of Mars... because not a single boy would go. And then the other truth is, no girl would go to see John Carter Of Mars. So I said, "I don't won't to do anything out of fear, I hate doing things out of fear, but I can't ignore that truth." All the time we were making this big character

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/Wolvie09/news/?a=50724&t=Andrew_Stanton_On_Why_He_Decided_To_Remove_Of_Mars_From JOHN CARTER Title