

"I signed a blood oath," the actress jokingly told Total Film in a recent interview. "Bloody thumbprint on paper." As for why she decided to take the role of Catwoman in the highly anticipated movie from director Christopher Nolan, she said: "I went after it because it was the best role and Chris was willing to meet me. I want to be the best actress I can be and that means working with the best people and taking the most challenging roles." "That's the plan so far and it's led to some really exciting places." Unfortunately, Hathaway refused to reveal anything about the movie or the character she plays, but did promise that The Dark Knight Rises is ""going to be really good". Here's hoping, eh?
