

The final theatrical poster for Lionsgate's upcoming Power Rangers reboot arrived online yesterday afternoon to much fanfare, and now, an eagle-eyed fan has been able to unlock another. The new promo poster, comes to us from the fansite Power Rangers NOW!, who discovered it through a Kellogg's movie tie-in cereal in Belgium, which allows fans to download the poster after entering a code found within the box. While it may not be an official one-sheet, it's still a pretty cool piece of artwork as we get a really great look at all five Rangers standing tall with what looks to be the Command Center in the background. Zordon & Alpha 5 are nowhere to be seen, but expect to see a lot more of them as the release date swiftly approaches. Check out the new promo poster below:  It may be a bit of a stretch, but the new poster does bear a passing resemblance to the theatrical poster for 1995's Mighty Morphin Power Rangers:

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/sci-fi/power_rangers/another-new-power-rangers-poster-pays-a-slight-homage-to-a148663