

In a conversation with the Omelete, Marvel executive Victoria Alonso has revealed that the Ant-Man test reel Edgar Wright filmed in last June, and showed a month later San Diego Comic-Con is being cleaned up for a possible release. "What we showed at Comic-Con was a work in progress. We're working on finishing it, and I think you might see it. Not sure where, but we always listen to the fans. And if the fans demand it we make sure they get it. I don't know if we are going to post it online, but I don't have [any reason] to believe we may not." After the footage was shown opinions were extremely positive, adjectives like fun, badass, and awesome were repeated numerous times. Click here to read some reactions. Alonso also reassured fans that Edgar Wright will direct, which is something we already knew. He'll most likely begin

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/nailbiter111/news/?a=67146>