

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=27969&:t=Ant-Man Wasp Enlisted in iThe Avengersi in a Production Update

Courtesy of a good friend at heart, inside one of their recent production updates, the ever-reliable Production Weekly provided a minor update for Marvel's crossover extravaganza The Avengers. Though director Joss Whedon has clarified that this wouldn't be so, two fellow Avengers, who many have questioned their existence, are included in the roster. Select the screened image below. While the intended update didn't involve revealing, nor confirming that the Pym's are in The Avengers, a strong possibility still remains. For creditability, several other production updates are listed, including ones for Warner Bros. The Dark Knight Rises, Superman, The Man of Steel, and many other non-CBM adaptations. Whether or not we see Hank & Janet, The Avengers hits the big-screen next year in 3D. And production is currently slated to commence in New Mexico, in April. What do you think?