

It's going to be a whirlwind 24 hours for Ariel Winter. Sunday night, the young actress was on stage at the Emmy Awards along with her cast of Modern Family to claim the prize for Outstanding Comedy Series, and tonight she'll be walking the red carpet at the premiere of her new animated film, Batman: The Dark Knight Returns, Part 1. Winter gives voice to the first female Robin, Frank Miller's stroke of genius for his landmark comic book story. She'll join co-stars Peter Weller and David Selby on the red carpet at the Paley Center in Los Angeles tonight, September 24, for the West Coast premiere of Batman: The Dark Knight Returns, Part 1. Also on hand will be a quartet of filmmakers: executive producer Bruce Timm, director Jay Oliva, writer Bob Goodman and dialogue director Andrea Romano. The event is completely sold out. Now in her fourth season as Alex Dunphy on

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/johnwilbanks/news/?a=67760>