

Designed after Thor's first appearance in 1962's Journey into Mystery vol. 1, Issue 83, this officially licensed Thor helmet from Windlass Studios was awarded to me in a contest sponsored by comicbookmovies.com and superherostuff.com. And all I had to do was click 'Like!' The helmet itself is made out of chrome-plated steel while the wings themselves are made out of fiberglass and painted white, mimicking the classic comic book colors. It also has a nifty feature: a synthetic leather fitting device inside the helmet with a drawstring closure that makes wearing it more comfortable. However, I doubt anyone could wear this thing for long, it weighs in at an impressive 18 pounds! It also includes a certificate of authenticity that states this product is only one (#412) out of 1000, and is guaranteed to be a licensed product. Also contained is a background history: "While in Norway, Donald

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/ArrionShadow/news/?a=36160&t=ArrionShadow_Unboxing_The_Thor_Helmet