

More and more artists are offering up their own unique takes on superheroes these days (see the brilliant work of Daniel Clarke in the article below this one for yet another example) and now designer Greg Guillemín has lent his talent to these special "art deco" style character posters featuring everyone from Cyclops to Hellboy and Spider-Man. When thinking back to some of the awful theatrical posters we saw for releases such as X-Men: First Class earlier this year, the mind boggles as to why the major studios aren't hunting down the creators behind such stunning pieces of work as these. Guillemín's website includes many more samples of his work, and you can find those by clicking on the link below.

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=50316&t=Artist_Greg_Guillemín_Puts_A_Unique_Art_Deco_Spin_On_Amazing_Superhero_Posters