

Deadline report that Atlas Entertainment are moving ahead with an adaptation of upcoming graphic novel, Langley High. According to the site, the script will be written by Tom Coker and Daniel Freedman (Undying Love) with Atlas' Charles Roven and Alex Gartner producing alongside publishers Benderspink. Written by JC Spink and Christopher Cosmos, the story focusses on a student from Langley High which is located 1.7 miles from the CIA headquarters. After his father is captured in Russia and disavowed as a CIA Agent, the student teams up with an undercover CIA agent teacher from his high school and ends up on a mission of revenge. It's worth noting that Atlas is a producer on The Dark Knight Rises and Man of Steel for Warner Bros. What do you guys think? Are you looking forward to seeing this movie? Share your thoughts below.

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=46881&t=Atlas Entertainment Set To Adapt Graphic Novel iLangley High