

Marvel is currently hard at work filming both Black Panther and Avengers: Infinity War in Atlanta and while, we probably won't see anything from the latter for a while, we were fortunate enough to receive our first look at one of the returning villains from the Ryan Coogler-directed feature late yesterday afternoon as Golden Globe-nominated actor Andy Serkis (War for the Planet of the Apes) was spotted on-set, reprising his role as the international smuggler/arms dealer Ulysses Klaue from Joss Whedon's 2015 blockbuster Avengers: Age of Ultron. The photos, which come to us from AtlantaFilming, aren't all that spoilery, but they do show him sporting some sort of blue glove, which may suggest he's found himself a new hand - that'll be a CGI creatoin - after his original one was unceremoniously chopped off by Ultron. The photographer also adds that Serkis was seen shooting scenes with Michael B. Jordan (Creed), who is just to the left of him hiding behind a couple umbrellas. It's hard

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/black_panther/avengers-age-of-ultrons-andy-serkis-spotted-on-the-set-of-marvels-a148790