

Thanks to Batman-News, we have a new batch of concept art from Suicide Squad. Offering up a look at alternate designs for pretty much every character, we see different costumes for the likes of Harley Quinn, Deadshot, Enchantress, and Katana. Some are more comic book faithful than others, and it's actually a shame that they weren't ultimately used in the divisive movie from director David Ayer. The artwork also features some familiar locations from Suicide Squad, including the bar where Task Force X assemble (which gets a little more screentime in the Extended Cut) and The Joker's club. Which of these designs do you most wish had made it into the movie? As always, take to the comments section to let us know your thoughts on that and any other big reveals in the artwork.

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/suicide_squad/awesome-new-suicide-squad-concept-art-focuses-on-alternate-costumes-a146935