

For several years now, there have been talks to bring Lobo to the big screen, with Guy Ritchie even attached to direct at one time. For one reason or another, the project has never really gotten much traction and has basically become stagnant, with DC and Warner Bros. opting to focus on characters that could potentially lead to a Justice League film. But I think that many fans would agree that the DC/WB duo needs to look outside those main stream characters for an upcoming project and Lobo is the perfect candidate. Movie goers seem to be eating up the idea of violence in their films (to an extent) and with Marvel and Fox still working on a Deadpool film, this would be the opportune time to beat them to the punch and get their own version of a smart-mouthed ass-kicker to the screen first. Lobo was created in the 1980's as
