

When Sam Raimi and company were headed into production with a fourth Spider-Man film a while back, many were hoping to see Morbius show up on screen, and with someone like Raimi behind the scenes, you know that he would be able to pull it off in a decent manner, despite the negative response of Spider-Man 3. Well, we all know how things ended up with that film: the Vulture showing up and some made-up girl that is angry; It didn't sound good. Hence, we have our newly re-booted Spider-Man franchise with Andrew Garfield and Emma Stone, with Marc Webb behind the camera. Not long ago, Ed Gross posted that the sequel to The Amazing Spider-Man would arrive in theaters in 2014. So, in hopes that we get to see something a bit different for the franchise, I've decided to highlight Morbius: The Living Vampire in my latest installment of Baddies

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/geekboymovienews/news/?a=44028&t=Baddies_That_Need_Movie_Love_Morbius