

Let's rewind about 20 years to when the always popular X-Men cartoon premiered. The first two episodes of that series (save for the pilot where Wolverine had an Australian accent) were devoted to the introduction of the Sentinels, who we first see busting into a shopping mall, trying to capture Jubilee. But their sheer power and diligence to complete their task is very evident in those two episodes. Of course, Jubilee is then rescued by several of the X-Men and she is quickly integrated into the team. Throughout this series, the Sentinels were prominently featured and it brought them to the attention of the mainstream TV audience, when previously, only readers of comics were likely able to pick them out. We've now had 5 live-action X-Men films and the closest we have come to seeing Sentinels in one of them was in the Danger Room at the beginning of The Last
