

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsraits/news/?a=28500&t=Batman_Short_iThe_Rat

Good stuff eh? Very well written, shot and acted. The end is a little abrupt but maybe there are plans for more installments. It appears to have been made with the intention of getting noticed by Nolan and his producers. I have no idea if they are barking up the wrong tree or not but there is some talent on display here for sure. From FilmsEntire.. This film initially was made with the good hopes of gaining the attention of the esteemed filmmakers of the most recent Batman film franchise. The actors only hope was to submit themselves for consideration in ANY role that may be required. What began as an audition reel resulted in this promotional piece that all felt ownership in. From the Director to the Writer, to the camera man and PA, we all hope you enjoy, THE RAT. - And Chris Nolan, please give us a call! </center