

The extended cut of Suicide Squad didn't really live up to expectations, but there's no denying that it's a pretty good looking movie. That's emphasised by the amazing work of photographer Clay Enos, and he's today shared a brand new photo which shows Harley Quinn heading into action against one of Enchantress' minions. It's a great shot, and kind of mind-blowing that it wasn't released officially. Still, we can probably expect plenty more images like these from Enos over the coming weeks and months, while next year will no doubt see him share some behind the scenes shots from Wonder Woman and Justice League! Time will tell, but let us know your thoughts on this image below.

Read more: https://www.comicbookmovie.com/suicide_squad/be-thankful-for-harley-quinn-with-this-new-behind-the-scenes-image-a147047