

The supermodel posed as Wonder Woman for the special collectors' issue of Grazia Australia. Sure we got a peek at the cover yesterday, but there is something special about seeing Miranda from multiple angles in that form-fitting costume. Also doesn't hurt that we get a sneak peek in this video of the inside images of her posing nude, with just an Australian flag covering her bits and pieces. Grazia fashion director Thelma McQuillan says they're proud to have pushed the boundaries with this photoshoot -- transforming a typically American icon into an Australian hero. "We're a fashion magazine -- and this is art," says Thelma. "We're taking a risk -- because Wonder Woman is a globally recognised icon and not just anyone could pull it off. But Miranda is an Australian icon herself... She is our wonder woman. And she has the presence to pull this re-creation off." This is going to make
