

We heard some time ago that Joel Silver - producer of, among many others, Sherlock Holmes, V For Vendetta, and the Matrix trilogy - had signed on to develop a live-action feature film based on Cartoon Network's Ben 10 sci-fi franchise, with an eye toward distribution through Warner Bros. All has been quiet since, but MTV caught up with the show's creators and they offered a few updates.. Says Duncan Rouleau.. "We've met with Silver a couple of times but it's very early in the development stages to really discuss it any further than that. Other than we are also equally as excited by the prospects." Steven Seagle adds.. "It's a live action film as far as we know. They've commissioned a script, which is exciting and we had a lot of cool conversations with Joel Silver the time we met with him about even which version it'll be, what aliens kids like,
