

It's currently thought that Benedict Cumberbatch will play 'Gary Mitchell' in Star Trek 2, although that is far from confirmed at this point, and just one on many rumours currently circulating about the sequel which is still shrouded in secrecy. In an interview with ShortList, the British actor has talked a little more about his role in the J.J. Abrams helmed film which we already know (thanks to some leaked set photos) will see him take on Spock in a fairly epic looking battle. There's still no sign of a trailer, but Star Trek 2 is released on May 17th, 2013. "I'll tell you this, it's iconic and it's exciting. I'm bored of denying that it's Khan now, because people keep saying it. It's a great part and it's really well written. I enjoyed the fights and the stunts, there's lots of that and it really is proper action movie territory. I

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=66519>