

Kick-Ass 2 has now moved to the UK to finish off filming, and writer and director Jeff Wadlow has continued to keep fans up to date with the production via his official Twitter account (@JeffWadlow). The latest photo from the set features a case containing the suit of Hit-Girl's father, Big Daddy. It's reminiscent of the way in which Jason Todd's (a.k.a. Robin) costume has been depicted on display in the Batman comic books after his death, perhaps indicating that this is Hit-Girl's base. Of course, we do know that Nic Cage will reprise the role through flashbacks. Meanwhile, you'll also see below that 'Colonel Stars' himself, Jim Carrey, has revealed that he has now arrived in the UK for shooting. Day 23... Nobody puts Daddy in the corner. #kickass2 @ChloeGMoretz Goodmornoonevening world. It's a stunningly beautiful day here in Great Britain! Heading to Pinewood studios to film Kick-Ass2. LOVE IT! ;^}— Jim
