

Off the heels of the Anime shows for Iron Man, Wolverine and X-Men, Marvel is prepping a final anime series, this time centering on Blade. Dreamgirls' Harold Perrineau will voice the Daywalker in his animated series debut, which is set to begin airing January 13th on G4. Below is a portion of the press release that Marvel issued announcing the news, which includes a couple of new screenshots as well as plot info for the series. A new Marvel original anime series sinks its teeth into the G4 network with the premiere of "Blade" on Friday, January 13th at 11 p.m. ET/PT. Harold Perrineau voices Eric Brooks, the supernatural Daywalker known as Blade, making his animated series debut with more action, terrifying villains and bloodthirsty monsters than you've ever seen before. Following in the steps of other hit Marvel anime series, "Blade" offers viewers 12 half-hour weekly episodes destined to leave you

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=51618&t=BLADE Anime To Debut January 13th On G4>