

Two of the biggest money-spinners in Hollywood today are the found footage and Superhero movies. So I guess it was only a matter of time before someone saw the sense in combining the two and making a packet. Luckily for us, that someone was Josh Trank. For while it might have been easy to be cynical, Chronicle delivers in pretty much every way. If you have seen the trailers, you know the premise. Three high-school pals (a kind hearted jock, a sensitive but popular kid trying not to be a jock, and a bullied outcast) stumble upon a hole in the ground, and when they investigate are gifted with incredible powers that get stronger the more they use them. The movie is filmed "found footage" style, with Andrew (Dane DeHaan) given a plausible reason to begin to document his day to day life. He is joined by his cousin Matt (Alex

Read more: <http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/rorschachsrrants/news/?a=59877>