

The Force is still strong with Rogue One: A Star Wars Story as it gears up for its second weekend at the North American box office. The movie grossed $16.7 million yesterday, taking its current domestic haul up to $221.9 million. By the end of today, it will have passed Doctor Strange's current haul of $227 million, and it should go up over the next few weeks, especially with pretty much no competition. ROGUE ONE: A STAR WARS STORY - 10 Awesome Easter Eggs You May Have Missed Sing will bring in younger moviegoers, but tepid reviews for the likes of Passengers, Why Him?, and Assassin's Creed guarantee that Rogue One should stay on top for the time being in North America. ROGUE ONE: A STAR WARS STORY - 10 Mind-Blowing Cameos You Probably Missed Internationally, the movie made $15 million on Thursday for a total of $197.9 million, led by the UK with an impressive $35.1 million. As a result, the first of Disney
