

Last week, it was revealed that the movie had a director and now, we have the news that Bradley Cooper is in talks for the leading role in the upcoming reboot. Here is an excerpt from the report over at The Hollywood Reporter. Bradley Cooper is in early negotiations to star in Relativity's remake of The Crow, being directed by Juan Carlos Fresnadillo. In the adaptation of the gritty black-and-white indie comic by artist James O'Barr, Cooper will play a rock musician who is murdered while trying to save his fiancée from thugs. He is resurrected by supernatural forces and seeks revenge. The role was originally played by Brandon Lee, who was killed by a freak accident during production in 1993. What do you think? Is Bradley Cooper a good choice for the role, or do you have someone better in mind? Be sure to share your thoughts in the usual place!
