

Alex Proyas' big budget adaptation of the epic John Milton-penned poem, Paradise Lost, was originally scheduled to begin production earlier this month, with plans for a late 2013 release. However, a month ago Warner Bros. temporarily put the brakes on the project (around the same time they postponed Akira and Arthur & Lancelot) a few weeks before it was set to commence production in Australia, reportedly for budget issues. But now, actor Bradley Cooper - who stars in the film as 'Lucifer' - updates on the project while speaking with The Playlist. He confirmed that the film hasn't been axed and that it'll begin filming this summer... "We're going to hopefully start in June. Everything's going great. I mean, nothing's done until we're up and shooting." The rest of the cast consists of Benjamin Walker, Casey Affleck, Djimon Hounsou, Diego Boneta, Camilla Belle, Sam Reid, Rufus Sewell and Callan

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/BatFreak/news/?a=53569&t=Bradley Cooper Says That PARADISE LOST Will Film This June