

The CW has released the description for the fifth episode of The Flash's third season, and it definitely sounds like Caitlin Snow is about to become Killer Frost. It's not hard to read between the lines here as the Fastest Man Alive's ally losing it and accidentally injuring or killing her mother after unleashing her powers should bring Caitlin one step closer to fully embracing her villainous persona from the comics. It will be a shame to lose Caitlin from Team Flash if that's the direction things are heading in, but the events of Flashpoint created a very different world, so who knows just how different this version of the character is. We'll have to wait and see, but this sounds like it should be a pretty interesting instalment of The Flash when it airs on November 1st. What do you guys think of the synopsis for "Monster"?
