

To read the interview in its entirety, be sure to head on over to MTV Splash Page by clicking the link below. Here are some of the key excerpts. You just mentioned Batroc, and we've seen Arnim Zola in the "Captain America" trailer. You're taking some nice dives into Cap's supporting cast, it seems like... McFEELY: Absolutely. There are some other ones that will go unnamed that didn't make the final shooting script, too. MARKUS: It's painful because Cap had all of these great villains in World War II. Obviously, the guy no one's talking about because we're not using him in the film is Zemo. He's huge in the WWII story, but you eventually get to a point where there are too many elephants in the room. McFEELY: You don't want too many villains. I think other movies have fallen short when there are too many villains. Particularly for the first one, you don't

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/joshw24/news/?a=34180&t=iCaptain\_America\_i\_Screenwriters\_Talk\_Baron\_Zemo\_MODOK\_And\_More