

Writer Fred Van Lente tells Newsarama how he ended up writing the comic tie in for the Captain America: The First Avenger film and what he thought about the script and images he was able to see.. "The studio's requested me and I was really flattered. I got to read the script, which was wonderful. I got to see all the stills and everything. I have seen literally hundreds of images from the movie. I am so psyched. I think it is definitely going to be a classic superhero movie, just from the script alone. But having seen what the actors are doing with it and the set design and the costume design, everything looks terrific." By TwitterButtons.com
