Ridley Scott's long running idea for a prequel to Alien, his box office smash that he was denied the director's chair for its sequel, has hit a few major bumps on the road to the silver screen. The prequel has been pushed back twice in the past few months. The film has also bounced several times gaining momentum enough to come close to casting, but another dangerous tragedy would always follow any good news. Vulture reported months back that the prequel scored a title. Paradise. This rumor was debunked by Fox representatives a few days later. But Vulture was also the first to report that director Jon Favreau was leaving the Iron Man franchise that helped Marvel mold their cinematic universe. Vulture is reporting that actress Charlize Theron has passed on the Clint Eastwood's directed film J. Edgar in favor of the Alien Prequel and that a
