

Source: Total Film Speaking to Total Film Magazine, the lovely Charlize Theron answered a few questions about Prometheus, the Alien prequel that's being marketed as not a prequel. Here's what Theron had to say: When we asked if her role in the Alien sorta-prequel would be comparable to Sigourney Weaver's iconic Ripley: THERON: "No, I actually don't play the heroine in it; that's Noomi Rapace. I play somewhat of a villain in it." [My character] is not a believer, she's not a scientist, she is the red tape that everyone has to go through. She's working with the company that's sponsoring this whole thing and you can feel she definitely has an agenda, which we pick up in the third act. She's more quiet thunder. On whether any xenomorphs burst out of unsuspecting chests in Prometheus: THERON: "Maybe! I mean if you're a Ridley Scott fan and you love the

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GraphicCity/news/?a=51776&t=Charlize_Theron_On_If_Her_Role_In_PROMETHEUS_Is_Similar_To_Sigourney_Weavers_Ripley_In_ALIEN