

Below you'll find the first 6 or so minutes of DC's next animated feature, Justice League Dark. In the opening scenes we find Wonder Woman, Superman and Batman all involved in separate incidents with civilians who are experiencing terrifying hallucinations of demonic creatures. This leads to a meeting at the Hall of Justice, before we get to a couple of scenes that have already been released as clips, involving Bats being his usual friendly self and some ominous Constantine foreshadowing. When innocent civilians begin committing unthinkable crimes across Metropolis, Gotham City and beyond, Batman must call upon mystical counterparts to eradicate this demonic threat to the planet. Enter Justice League Dark, reluctantly led by the Hellblazer himself, John Constantine. Like Batman, Constantine is a cunning, often cynical loner who is the best at his chosen profession – but quickly realizes the sinister forces plaguing the planet will require help from other supernatural alliances. Forming a new “league” with sorceress Zatanna, otherworldly Deadman, and
