

Tonight's instalment of The Walking Dead ended with Rick surrounded and... smiling? It seems clear that Mr. Grimes feels he's just encountered some well-armed soldiers for his new army, but before any recruiting can be done it looks like he's going to have to talk himself and his crew out of a pretty sticky situation. Plus, we're going to see the debut of that terrifying spiked walker.

Check out the promo for "New Best Friends" below, and let us know what you thought of tonight's extended midseason premiere in the comments section. While searching for a missing Alexandrian, Rick and his group encounter a mysterious collective, its inhabitants unlike any they have come across.
