

If filming doesn't soon start on the sequel to Kick-Ass, the 14-year-old actress may just be too old to return as Hit-Girl. After the success of X-Men: First Class, it is currently believed that director Matthew Vaughn's next project will in fact be a sequel featuring those characters rather than the Mark Millar and John Romita Jr. creations. Millar himself recently stated that it was far more likely Vaughn would return only in a production or writing capacity. Regardless, the status of Kick-Ass 2 remains unclear, and if you were hoping that a chat with MTV Splash Page while promoting Hugo would loosen Moretz's tongue, think again. Get More: Movie Trailers, Movies Blog "Good question. You know, I have a lot of movies coming up for next year. You never know. I'm mysterious! Call Matthew Vaughn, ask him..."

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/JoshWildingNewsAndReviews/news/?a=50182&t=Chlo_Moretz_Refuses_To_Reveal_When_Or_If_She_Will_Return_As_Hit-Girl_In_A_Sequel_To_iKick-Assi