

Taking part in a Q&A session with GQ Magazine earlier this month, actor Chris Evans discussed his commercial for Gucci's new fragrance, and of course his 'Captain America' revival reprisal in Marvel's The Avengers movie. Briefly commenting on the "uncool-ness," and importance of the character, read on below! "I don't think he's the coolest guy—he's far from it. He's a straight- shooter. He's probably pretty boring as far as a character goes, but I feel like he grounds things. When you have these giant personalities and egos, there needs to be someone who brings them back down and reminds that this is a team, not the individual show." The actor when on to reminisce signing on for "The sentinel of liberty" role with last summer's Captain America: The First Avenger movie, as well his growing love for the character. "The first time I read the script before I took the job, there

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/MarvelFreshman/news/?a=52731&:t=Chris_Evans_Comments_On_Where_Captain_America_Essentially_Stand_In_THE_AVENGERS