

I'm sure many of you reading this will remember last year when Chris Evans was announced as the man who would portray Steve Rogers aka Captain America in Marvel Studios upcoming film. A short while after the initial announcement, Evans made some comments that many had a difficult time understanding, to the effect that he was happy with the roles he had been playing and was hesitant to step into such a large pair of film shoes. On May 2nd of last year our own Josh Wilding reported the following... "It was a couple of weeks weighing all the options. There was certainly a period where I was shying away from the movie. It's intimidating. It's pretty daunting. There's certainly a life-changing role there and that was part of the process." "Did I want to take this on? I like supporting roles, I like the way my life is now and I have

Read more: http://www.comicbookmovie.com/fansites/GulfCoastAvengers/news/?a=35371&amp;t=Chris\_Evans\_Finally\_Sheds\_Some\_Light\_On\_Why\_He\_Almost\_Turned\_Down\_iCaptain\_AmericaThe\_First\_Avenger